QUESTION: Hi...my school district is considering allowing LPNs to work as substitute nurses. They require an RN for full-time employment. I cover the elementary, middle, and high school and the other side of the district is about 40 mins away and is also comprised of an elementary, middle, and high school. I have 5 kids with type 1 diabetes....3 on pumps, numerous kids with asthma and I know the other side of the district has at least 2 kids with type 1 diabetes. I would like to know first if an LPN can work as a school nurse in WY. Second whether they can dose insulin, glucagon etc, and third if they need an RN available (in this case the RN would be reachable by phone but 40 mins away) does that mean that the RN is liable and legally responsible for the LPN? Thank you Suzanne Prior, RN Big Horn Campus Nurse, Big Horn Wy | b.
